STATE CHARGES FOR SERVICE TO COUNTIES HIT

Levies for Care of Institutional Patients Too High, Accountant Says.

MORE THAN ACTUAL COST

Survey Includes Marion, Delaware and Morrow Counties.

Alleging financial situation involving alleged overcharging of counties by the state for care of county patients in state institutions has been uncovered by Carl A. Dellenbaugh, Columbus accountant who recently made a study of the charges to Marion county, news reports from Columbus stated today. Dellenbaugh made investigations for seven central Ohio counties in connection with the new state law which authorizes the state to withhold sales tax revenue from counties owing the state for hospitalization.

His investigation shows that from 1925 to the close of 1936 Marion county was charged with $96,617 while the per capita cost of maintenance of the county's patients to the state was only $57,874. According to his figures the county has been overcharged $26,743.

Check Delayed

Meanwhile, the county has not yet received its $6,616 sales tax check for October which the state auditor must release to the county in accordance with a temporary injunction granted Thursday afternoon in Franklin county common pleas court. The Associated Press reported notice of the injunction has not been served on the state auditor. County Auditor Harry V. Mounts said he expects the check to be released this week.

The suit, based partly on Mr. Dellenbaugh's study of the county-state financial relationships, was filed following the state's withholding the county's sales tax revenue on the contention that the county still owes $57,420.29 for hospitalization. That particular bill is for the period from 1931 to the present, Mr. Mounts said.

Mr. Mounts explained the state is permitted under a state law passed in 1925 to charge a flat rate of $5.50 a week for housing county patients, despite the fact that their maintenance costs have been well below that figure.

Actual Cost Figured

Mr. Dellenbaugh has computed the actual per capita maintenance cost to the state at $182.24 per week on an average for the counties studied. The yearly per capita charge to the counties is $286. Before 1925 the state was permitted to charge only $3.50 a week or $182 a year, Mr. Mounts said.

The opinion has been expressed by Marion county officials that the overcharging is unprecedented in view of the prevalent holding that the state should not make a profit on its public services.

One favorable result of Mr. Dellenbaugh's study was the uncovering of a flagrant incident in which Marion county had been charged by the state from 1923 to 1935 for care of a probate court ward, although the woman died in 1924. The county recently received a credit for $3,466 for refund, Mr. Mounts said.

Mr. Dellenbaugh has also denied charges by Oakley Spaght, assistant welfare department director, that he had claimed to be a state employe when he offered his services to counties in making the study.

Others Overcharged

Other counties included in his studies were Delaware, Morrow, Fairfield, Muskingum, Perry and Licking. Throughout the state he estimated the state may find itself obligated to pay refunds of several hundred thousand dollars.

In Delaware county from 1925 through 1935 the charge was $93.50 and actual cost of maintenance $57.20. In Morrow county the charge was $53.408 and the cost $37.

PHYSICIAN JARS HAHN DEFENSE

Doctor Who Performed Post Mortem Denies Seeing Laceration on Victim's Head.

NEIGHBORS CITE "HOLE"

Claim Defendant Sent Elderly Man to Hospital Because of Unhealed Injury.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18 — The first degree murder trial of Anna Marie Hahn entered its second week today with the defendant confronted by testimony of a physician offered to refute her own version of circumstances surrounding Jacob Wagner's admittance to a hospital.

The blond German immigrant is charged with fatally poisoning Wagner, a 78-year-old acquaintance.

Dr. Mitchell Ganim, assistant pathologist at a Cincinnati hospital, who performed a post mortem on Wagner, said he found no lacerations on Wagner's body.

"Wasn't there a laceration on his head which had not healed?" questioned Chief Defense Counsel Joseph H. Hoodin.

"I don't know," Dr. Ganim replied.

Neighbors in the Wagner home had testified previously that Mrs. Hahn said she sent Wagner to the hospital "because he had a hole in his head."

Dr. Ganim declared inability to say whether there were poison crystals near Wagner's liver, but added there were none near the heart.

With hearing of 10 prosecution witnesses last week, a member of the prosecution staff said the trail was progressing with "unexpected rapidity" and that all the state's witnesses might be called this week. A court session was scheduled for tonight.

The defense made an unexpected move over the week end by announcing it would subpoena Dr. Richard Marnell, who testified Saturday for the state.

Dr. Marnell said he did not know what caused Wagner's death, and described a post mortem which he testified revealed the stomach-lining and contents "brick red in color."

TWO GIVEN FINES, SENTENCES TODAY

Action Taken in Liquor Charges Against Rizzo and Lambrose.

Carmello Rizzo, 56, of 256 Oak street and A. O. Lambrose, 46, of 457 Silver street, convicted in municipal court on charges of selling liquor to minors, were sentenced today by Municipal Judge Martin Rizzo, whose new trial motion was denied, was given a $100 fine and a 10-day sentence in the county jail, while Lambrose was fined $200 and costs and given a suspended 30-day sentence to the county jail.

Rizzo's sentence was temporarily suspended pending further action in the case. He has 20 days in which to file an appeal in the common pleas court. The charge against the pair, who were co-proprietors of the LaMar restaurant at 526 West Center street, was filed by state officers following raids on two Marion night clubs, Aug. 14.

Kickoff Dinner Tonight To Open Y.M.C.A. Drive

Judge Young Predicts Drive for $12,450 Will Be Successful; Take Field Tomorrow.

A kickoff dinner tonight at the Y. M. C. A. will launch that organization's annual campaign for operating funds with $12,450 as the goal. The drive is scheduled to end a week from Tuesday.

As workers prepared to select lists of prospects and make other last-minute preparations at tonight's dinner meeting, leaders of the Y today called upon the community for suport of the organization.

Common Pleas Judge Hector S Young, president of the Y, predicted success for the campaign if the general solicitation phase of the work measures up to the efforts of the advance special gifts committee. He pointed out that the advance division, headed by Charles H. Isaly, is averaging increases of approximately one-third over last year's pledges, and that a number of new subscribers have been obtained.

Increase Needed

An increase of one-third over last year's pledges is needed from all divisions of the campaign organization if the goal is to be reached, he pointed out.

George D. Hildebrandt, general chairman of the campaign, urged workers to bear in mind that "we must raise $3,600 more this year than was obtained in 1936 if the goal is to be reached. We are asking all workers to seek increases in pledges, feeling certain that the friends of youth will respond to the need. We believe it will be necessary to obtain one-half of the fund in pledges ranging from $100 up, and that we shall need nearly 200 contributions in the $50 and $25 brackets. Then there will, of course, be a large number of $10 and $15 donations."

He emphasized that "boys and girls need your help. They need you now more than ever before. There can be no minimizing the fact that our boys and young men have a serious problem. Confused and bewildered, they face problems unknown 25 years ago. Their future and the future of the community depend upon their present environment.

"The Y. M. C. A. builds men—real men—the kind you want your son to be, the kind you would like your daughter to marry, the kind of men you want in your business or profession. It builds men with healthy bodies, alert minds, moral courage, civic spirit and integrity.

"The Y. M. C. A. develops boys into men of fine character by bringing them into fellowship of group activities under trained Christian leaders. The service of these leaders vitally affects the lives of more than 11,000 boys and young men in this community each year. Give them your backing in this worthwhile work."

Tonight's kickoff dinner is to open at 6 o'clock. Speakers will be Judge Young whose topic is "Hats Off to the Past—Coats Off to the Future," and E. N. Hale, Y secretary, who will speak on "Why $12,450?" John H. Clark, Marion attorney, will speak and the workers will make up their lists of prospects following the dinner program.

Reports on the progress of the campaign will be given Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of this week and Monday and Tuesday nights next week.

More about Y. M. C. A. campaign appears on pages 6 and 16.

FASCISTS HOLD ACE IN DIPLOMACY GAME

Franco's Refusal To Call Off Foreign Fighters Would Block Isolation Plans.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 18—Italy and Germany today held an ace which informed sources said may enable them to gain another diplomatic victory in the Spanish civil war non-intervention crisis.

Observers said Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy and Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany can agree to the Anglo-French plan for withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spanish armies and then let insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco scrap the plan by refusing to call off his foreign fighters.

Thus, they said, Germany and Italy were in a position which might permit them to prolong discussion over the problem and evade blame in the event that non-intervention machinery collapses. The non-intervention subcommittee is to meet Tuesday in London.

It was pointed out that although Franco orally has agreed to a withdrawal of foreign soldiers he has done so with a reservation. He has stipulated "equal withdrawal" of foreigners from both insurgent and central government forces, as proposed Saturday by Italy.

British diplomatic quarters, however, indicated Great Britain will ask for withdrawal of five men from the insurgent side to every man called out of government ranks. This ratio was worked out, it was stated, on the British belief that 100,000 foreigners are fighting with insurgents and only 20,000 for the central government.

Landon Speech Tomorrow Arouses Capital Interest

Wonder Whether He'll Comment on Roosevelt Program or G. O. P. Preparations.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 — Alf M. Landon's announcement of a radio speech tomorrow night aroused speculation today on two questions.

1. Will the 1936 Republican presidential nominee comment directly on President Roosevelt's talk of last Tuesday outlining his program for a special session of congress?

2. Will he discuss Republican preparations for the 1938 campaign, including the proposed off-year convention?

Landon gave no clue to his subject in announcing the address. He said only that he would discuss "certain questions of the day."

(The address will be broadcast over the NBC blue network, 8:30 to 9 p. m., Central Standard time (9:30 to 10 p. m. Marion time).

Political observers here considered it likely that he might take issue with the President on some legislative recommendations, or at least outline the Republican viewpoint.

Mr. Roosevelt said there was imperative need for crop control, wage-hour, regional planning, government reorganization and anti-trust legislation.

The speech also will give Landon an opportunity, if he wishes, to review Republican party affairs, particularly the suggestion of former President Hoover and others for a national convention next year to formulate policies.

The Republican national committee will meet in Chicago Nov. 5 to consider a convention call. Landon and some of his lieutenants have not shown particular enthusiasm for such a meeting.

The speech, in any event, will be regarded as another step in the early Republican campaign to increase the party's seats in congress in the 1938 election.

Organization for the campaign has been under way for weeks, but no major figure in the party has yet discussed publicly the issues on which votes will be asked.

Support of the President was mentioned in a factional campaign in Arkansas, where voters picked a successor today to the late Sen. Joseph T. Robinson, majority leader.

Gov. Carl E. Bailey, regular Democratic nominee, who received Farley's indorsement, declared his independent opponent, Rep. John E. Miller, was anti-Roosevelt. Miller, indorsed by Sen. Hattie Caraway, Democrat of Arkansas, among others, said he admired the President and objected to making him an issue.

Youngest of 3 Sisters Observes 91st Birthday

Mrs. Margaret Hinds of 176 North Seffner avenue, youngest of three sisters whose ages total 264 years, observed her ninety-first birthday anniversary yesterday at her home. The anniversary was celebrated quietly with a family dinner at the Hinds' home.

Mrs. Hinds' sisters are Mrs. Susan Scott of St. Paul, Minn., who celebrated her one-hundredth birthday anniversary Sept. 29, and Mrs. Ella Blue of Belle Plaine, Ia., who is 93. Mrs. Blue joined Mrs. Scott for observance of her birthday last month. They are the daughters of John and Martha Roult Anderson, pioneer Marion county couple. The family home was east of the city on Harding Highway E., and stood about where the Lawrence farms are now located. Two brothers, Levi and Thomas, died during the Civil war, and a brother Frank of Crestline died more than 20 years ago at the age of 85.

Mrs. Hinds is in fairly good health and is able to attend church and visit with her friends. Mrs. Scott made her home here for a year about 12 years ago, and Mrs. Blue visited her sister here four years ago. Born here, Mrs. Hinds always has made her home in Marion and vicinity.

The table laid for the birthday dinner had a birthday cake as a centerpiece, and decorations were yellow and white birthday candles. Present with the celebrant were her daughters, Mrs. Ella Matthews of LaRue and Miss Arena Hinds at home, her granddaughter Miss Florence Matthews and her grandson and wife Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Matthews of LaRue. The rooms were decorated with flowers, gifts of relatives and friends of Mrs. Hinds.

He said that later he remembered that three men crowded their way past him as he left the store. L. A. Robinson of 686 Windsor street told police that a billfold was taken from his pocket at Harding stadium Friday night. It contained $13, he said.

FORMER HEAD OF THEATER HERE WINS MOVIE POST

Albert E. Sindlinger Made Advertising and Promotion Director for March of Time.

A former Marion man, Albert E. Sindlinger, who was the first manager of the Palace theater here has been appointed director of promotion and advertising of the March of Time, a nationally distributed news reel feature, according to a communication received today from the headquarters of the corporation in New York City.

FLORIDA FIRMS LOSE IN COURT TILT WITH SEC

Supreme Tribunal Refuses To Review Case Involving Subpoenaed Telegrams.

BOARD HAD BEEN UPHELD

Justice Black Believed To Have Taken Part in Decisions Given Today.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—Three Florida companies lost in the supreme court today in an attack on a securities commission attempt to subpoena their telegrams.

The tribunal refused to review a decision against the companies by the fifth circuit court of appeals. The latter sustained the subpoenaes, as well as the 1933 "trust in securities" act under which the subpoenaes were issued.

Justice Black was assumed to have participated in the action announced today on approximately 30 controversies appealed from lower courts.

Nothing to Contrary

No announcement was made that he had not participated. An announcement ordinarily is made when justices disqualify themselves for any reason from passing on litigation.

Refusal of the high tribunal to review the attack on the securities commission produced renewed speculation as to whether Black's supposed participation would give the companies grounds to challenge the court's ruling.

While chairman of the senate lobby committee Black used telegrams, obtained by the communications commission, which had been sent and received by persons under investigation by the committee.

In other actions by the court, the Jeffery-DeWitt Insulator Co. of Kenova, W. Va., lost an attack on an order by the national labor relations board which held the company guilty of unfair labor practices.

Refuse Review

The tribunal refused to review a decision against the company by the fourth circuit court of appeals.

The high court also:

Dismissed, "for the want of a substantial federal question," an appeal from a decision by the New York supreme court sustaining constitutionality of a 1935 state law barring civil actions for alienation of affections, seduction and breach of promise.

Dismissed an attack on a ruling by the Kentucky court of appeals sustaining an attempt by the state to impose tax on cosmetics sold within the state which had been purchased outside its borders. The supreme court said "it does not appear from the

EX-CONVICT HELD AS CHILD ATTACKER

Fingerprints Checked After Capture of Suspect in Columbus Roundup.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18—Fingerprints found in the untenanted house where 10-year-old Betty Jane Rush recently was attacked by a kidnaper were compared today with those of an ex-convict Police Lieut. Thomas H. Scully said had been positively identified as the rapist.

Scully reported that White, had confessed abducting Betty Jane but denied assaulting the child.

Scully said Betty Jane picked Donald White, 29, former convict, from a police lineup yesterday as the man who whisked her from the side of her brother, Billy, 12, as they returned home from a confectionery store Oct. 9 and held her captive for six hours.

Billy and another girl, Norma Jean King, 11, who said she was kidnaped Oct. 1 under similar circumstances but escaped unharmed, also identified White, Scully said. Questioned at city jail, Scully said White denied he kidnaped the two girls.

The officer said White was released last May from Ohio penitentiary where he was serving a sentence for burglary. Scully said that White was paroled in 1932 while serving a previous term but was returned later as a parole violator for molesting an 8-year-old girl.

White was taken into custody yesterday at the home of his mother following a relentless roundup of police characters in the city by officers under the direction of Detective Charles C. Cole, head of the homicide squad.

SHANGHAI TILT FATAL TO 4,400

Chinese Death Battalion Wiped Out in Encounter Fatal to 3,000 Japanese.

FIGHT LASTED 30 HOURS

Foreign Residents of Shanghai Press Demands for Action by Home Governments.

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Oct. 18 — Chinese authorities said today that a death battalion of 1,400 Chinese troops and more than 3,000 Japanese attackers were killed in a battle for possession of Tazang, about five miles northwest of Shanghai.

They described the engagement, in which Chinese fought to protect supply bases, as the heaviest single encounter in the Shanghai area since hostilities began.

Col. Chin Shing-Wu, commander of the Chinese force at Tazang, had declared they would fight to the last man. After 30 hours of continuous battle against Japanese infantry supported by planes and naval guns, Col. Chin was killed and his force wiped out.

Fear Catastrophe

Chinese and Japanese air raids and anti-aircraft shelling caused increasing fears in the international settlement that Shanghai may suffer a repetition of the "bloody Saturday" catastrophe of Aug. 14.

There was a growing demand among foreign residents for some sort of remedial action. It was learned that American and foreign consuls are asking their home governments to protest to both China and Japan against warplanes flying over the foreign areas.

United States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss was understood to have emphasized the potential danger in his dispatches to Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson at Nanking and to the state department at Washington.

Japanese, failing to break Chinese resistance in the Chapei sector of Shanghai in 57 days of continuous assaults, restarted to air bombardment of all Chinese communication lines and supply bases behind the lines.

Barrage Follows Raid

The Japanese bombardment followed a Chinese raid which ended at dawn. Chinese planes made six forays over the international settlement and French concession to drop bombs along the Whangpoo river front and Japanese Yangtzepoo and Hongkew sections of the international settlement.

The bombardments were said to have forced Japanese to abandon their landing field in the Yangtzepoo area and transfer equipment to Woosung, 12 miles downstream.

Casualties among Shanghai noncombatants since the warfare started were estimated today to total 2,000 dead and 3,000 injured.

American military experts said they believe that as long as Soochow creek and countless tributary canals and small rivers are kept open, Chinese soldiers probably will be able to hold Chapei.

One American officer predicted that only an additional 100,000 troops would enable Japanese to force Chinese from their Chapei district trenches. Chinese have bombproof dugouts, countless machine gun nests and sandbag barriers scattered about Chapei. They hold several Japanese outposts captured in last week's raids.

SHIP LOCATED IN WILDERNESS OF THE ROCKIES

Postal Inspector Says It's Either Badly Cracked Up or Burned.

DIFFICULT TO REACH

10 Mile Trip on Foot or Horseback Required To Reach Disaster Scene.

By The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 18—A giant "mailliner" of the United Air Lines, lost 14 hours with 19 persons, was sighted in rugged southwestern Wyoming today with first indications it either had been wrecked or burned.

Whether anyone had escaped alive could not be determined until ground searchers reached the scene—a matter of hours.

Arthur Willoughby, postal inspector, said he "understood" the plane was "burned or badly cracked up."

"They have nothing definite on it yet, but it is my understanding the men who found the ship got the impression it either had been badly smashed or had been partially burned," Willoughby said.

Found Near Airport

The plane was located by air searchers a relatively short distance from an emergency landing field on its regular westbound route from Cheyenne, Wyo. to Salt Lake City. The nearest settlements were Evanston, Wyo., to the east and Knight, Wyo., to the west. The spot was about 85 miles east of Salt Lake City and was known to residents there as Hayden's peak or porcupine ridge.

R. W. Schroeder, vice president of United, announced the mighty transcontinental transport was sighted by Bob Bergensen, pilot, and Observer Bill Williams, who then radioed they would land at the Knight, Wyo., field near the Utah border.

In rough, broken country, the scene of the apparent crash can be reached only by a difficult wagon road, Schroeder said. Rain and snow make access even more difficult.

In Wilderness Region

Hayden's peak is a promontory jutting out of the wilderness country at the eastern edge of the Wasatch mountain range.

At Evanston, Wyo., Sheriff Frank L. Narramore made this comment:

"The meager information reaching my office does not indicate whether any of the persons aboard the plane escaped injury, but there is sufficient evidence to believe the plane was badly damaged as one report said wreckage could be seen for some distance from the air."

An Evanston party of searchers intended to go first to some flats about 10 miles from the peak where they would enlist a party to climb the mountain side.

The Evanston sheriff estimated a circuitous 10-mile trip on foot or possibly more would be required from the nearest point where a horse and wagon could approach the plane.

The terrain prohibits the use of automobiles.

The plane left Cheyenne at 6:25 p. m. (Mountain Standard time) last night for Salt Lake City, and was due here at 8:42 p. m. (M. S.T.).

At 8:16 p. m. Pilot Earl D. Woodgerd reported he was over Rock Springs, Wyo., 75 miles east of Salt Lake City.

"Slightly rough. All O. K." was his report. It was the last word from the plane.

The transport left Chicago at 12:30 p. m., central standard time, yesterday, stopped at Omaha, left Cheyenne at 6:25 p. m., mountain standard time, and was due in Salt Lake City at 8:42 p. m., mountain standard time.

It carried 16 passengers and a crew of three—Pilot Woodgerd, Co-Pilot John Adams of Cheyenne and Stewardess Leah Derr of Salt Lake City.

Reported O. K. at 10,000 Feet

Harold Crary, U. A. L. vice president in charge of traffic, announced at Chicago that Woodgerd last reported flying "O. K." through broken clouds at an altitude of 10,000 feet, west of Rock Springs.

"The plane had sufficient fuel to cruise until 12:30 a. m.," Crary said. "An eastbound ship came through safely in the same territory covered by our plane."

Airman said that the expanse

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Neglect of Teeth

Oral hygience, the care of the mouth, is of vital importance to every man, woman and child. It is a matter so necessary that we cannot overstate it. Through the mouth pass many germs, and, unless certain simple precautions are observed, they may cause infection and disease.

Perhaps you will be astonished to learn that under what we call normal circumstances, even when proper care is taken, there are parked in the mouth from five million to eight million germs! Amazing, isn't it?

Fortunately, almost all of these are friendly germs, harmless in their nature, at least when present in the number I mention. But if the mouth is neglected, it may harbor more than 800 million germs. The vast difference between eight million and 800 million germs may mark the difference between danger and comparative safety. With teeming millions to deal with, the body resistance may be broken and disease may result.

For years the medical and dental professions have waged an unceasing campaign against the evil of neglecting the gums and teeth. Yet, despite this energetic drive, it is estimated that there are actually well over 60 million persons in North America who neglect their teeth. They entirely neglect not only the care of the teeth, which should be their daily duty, but rarely, if ever, visit the dentist except to have extractions.

It is no wonder that chronic disorders of the human body are on the increase. Many of the preventable diseases thrive because of this negligence.

Bear in mind that the mouth is in direct communication with the nasal cavities, from which go the passages leading to each middle ear and the nasal sinuses. The food canal from the mouth connects with the stomach and intestine. Through this these organs may become involved. Since the blood stream picks up poisons which may accumulate in the mouth and teeth, it may carry them to other parts of the body; in this manner any portion of the body may become infected. For example, the kidneys, heart, stomach, nose, eyes and even the intestinal tract may become involved. All these evils are traced to the lack of oral hygiene.

I advise every reader to consult with the doctor at least once a year for a complete physical check-up. After the visit to the doctor, consult with the dentist. The latter should be seen at periodic intervals to have the teeth and gums kept in perfect condition.

If the simple rule just given is followed; many possible infections of the teeth and mouth will be avoided and many chronic disorders prevented. Begin to observe this rule at an early age and you will enjoy health dividends in later years.

Harding To Open N. C. O. Season With Ashland Friday

O.S.U.-Northwestern Tilt To Hold Big 10 Spotlight

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 18 — Northwestern goes "on the spot" next Saturday.

The Wildcats, finding it harder to cling to their Big Ten football title than win it, have had two rough afternoons against Michigan and Purdue in a thus-far successful defense of their laurels. But next Saturday, at Columbus, Northwestern dares the formidable guns of Ohio State, and after that the Wildcats have nothing to worry about except getting by Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota, in order.

The champions will enter the Buckeye battle as underdogs. Ohio State, which will have had two weeks rest after losing a one-point thriller to Southern California, will be out to avenge another one-point defeat—the 14 to 13 victory taken by Northwestern last year to put the only conference loss on the Buck's 1936 record.

Northwestern probably will enter the game in top shape. The Wildcats, defeating Purdue 14 to 7 on a fumble-break in the closing minutes, came out of the bruising battle in good physical condition. Purdue has an open date preparatory to taking on Iowa, which lost its first conference start 13 to 6 to Wisconsin's surprising Badgers.

Wisconsin had to score a fourth period touchdown to whip the Hawkeyes, Howie Weiss counting after he and Beljin and Schmitz had played brilliantly in setting the stage. Iowa entertains Michigan next Saturday, as Wisconsin travels to Pittsburgh for battle with the Panthers.

Michigan, expected to give Minnesota a test, scored a first period touchdown which, apparently, was just the grease the Gophers have needed for several weeks. They scored 13 points in each of the final three periods to win 39 to 6 and stamp themselves as favorites to win the conference crown—or a share of it.

Indiana, putting on a fourth period drive, whipped Illinois 13 to 6 and next Saturday goes against Cincinnati University at Cincinnati. Illinois probably will appreciate its week of rest, and will be ready for an old rival, Michigan, on Oct. 30.

Chicago, after outplaying Princeton for the first half, fell before the superior man-power of the eastern eleven, losing 16 to 7.

Notre Dame, after bowing to Carnegie Tech 9 to 7 through inability to show a touchdown punch, entertains the tough Navy eleven.

ST. MARY GRIDDERS WILL INVADE CAREY; JUNIOR TILT BOOKED

Marion scholastic grid followers will have a full program in store for them this week with both St. Mary and Harding high aggregations and two city junior high teams taking part in games on home and foreign fields.

Harding's Presidents will travel to Ashland to engage in the initial North Central Ohio conference game Friday night. The contest will mark the start of the second half of the 10-game schedule of the Cramermen. St. Mary Parochial gridders, idle in game competition for two weeks, will trek Friday to Carey for the fourth contest of the current schedule.

Central and Vernon Junior high football clubs will face each other Thursday afternoon at Harding stadium, in what will be the deciding battle for 1937 city junior high honors. By winning, the Hoffman-coached Central team can clinch its undisputed claim to the title, while a defeat would give their East End opponents an opportunity to step into a tie for the championship.

Harding's Friday night encounter at Ashland will open a five-game conference schedule, with the Cramermen traveling to Ashland, Shelby and Galion and entertaining Mt. Vernon and Bucyrus on successive week-ends. Marion, along with Mr. Vernon and Galion, have been rated as the most logical contenders for the 1937 N. C. O. crown and with Harding being untested in league warfare much will depend on the outcome of the engagement with the Hilltoppers.

In five non-league encounters the Cramermen have won three, lost one and tied one. The defeat came last week at the hands of the Findlay Trojans who rolled up their eighth consecutive win in tilts against Harding teams. Cramer's proteges, although they have had more time to prepare for the N. C. O. activity than other schools which have already taken part in league games, will face a suicide schedule in meeting the circuit members on successive weeks.

The Friday game at Carey will be the fourth of five games on the schedule of the St. Mary high. For two weeks the Irish team has been going through workouts on the Silk Mill field in preparation for the two remaining games on its schedule. St. Mary, taking its first pair in football competition in 13 years, opened its season by battling LaRue high's team to a 6-6 deadlock, later lost to Tiffin Calvert, 32 to 0, and Crestline, 37 to 0.

As Gophers Beat Michigan

Dan Elmer, Minnesota center, smears Fred Trosko (left, with ball), speedy Michigan halfback, after Trosko crashes through center for a gain of two yards in the first period at Ann Arbor. Minnesota won 39-6.

CHICAGO, DETROIT HEADED FOR TITLE

Two Pro Grid Teams To Meet Sunday in Crucial Contest.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 18 — One of football's greatest "naturals" goes on at Wrigley field next Sunday when the Detroit Lions tear into the Chicago Bears—with the winner likely to roll on to the National pro league championship.

Detroit, led by the brilliant Dutch Clark, and Chicago, numbering in its lineup such stars as Beattie Feathers, Bronka Nagurski and Jack Manders, each have won four games. The Lions, however, have lost one game, and victory next Sunday for the Bears would establish this club as an overwhelming favorite to win the western sectional crown.

The Bears won their fourth straight game yesterday at the expense of their home town rivals, the Cardinals, taking a 16 to 7 decision before 23,000 cash customers.

Detroit, flashing its best attack of the season, rolled over Brooklyn 30 to 0.

The Green Bay Packers slaughtered the Cleveland Rams 35 to 10, with Don Hutson, fleet Packer end, scoring three touchdowns on passes by Arnie Herber and Bob Monnett.

Cliff Battles, with three long runs for touchdowns, led the Washington Redskins to a 34 to 20 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates before 13,000 at Washington.

New York's Giants, leaders of the eastern section with three victories and one defeat, tripped Philadelphia's hapless Eagles 21 to 0.

SILENT RATTAN ON MAT BILL TONIGHT

Kansas City Mule Will Meet Dale Haddock.

Kansas City's mute wrestler, Silent Rattan, will take part in one of the spot-lighted bouts on the wrestling program at the Marion Steam Shovel gymnasium tonight. Ratton, no stranger to mat addicts here, will exchange holds with a newcomer, Dale Haddock of Chicago, in one of the pair of 90-minute bouts.

The Silent one, who visited the Marion ring often during the summer months, comes back after a successful tour of the east. In the other headline bout, Lefty Pacer of New York City will be paired with Boston's Jimmy Spencer. In both scraps two falls will decide the winner. Pacer appeared here last week when he battled Prince Nihalikas to a 20-minute draw and Spencer made his debut in Marion against Charlie Carr several weeks ago.

The program will be completed with a 20-minute preliminary which will open the mat activity at 8:30 o'clock. The Pacer-Spencer bout will follow the preliminary with the Rattan-Haddock bout ringing down the final curtain.

BY FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18—William (Big Bill) Edwards, the youngster who stepped into the late Sam Willaman's shoes as Western Reserve's football coach, and whose team has not lost a game in three years, held a new honor today.

"Big Bill," who twice captained the football forces of Wittenberg college in the days when the Springfield college was a power in the tough Buckeye conference, was awarded the No. 1 lifetime pass by that school as it handed complimentary tickets to all its former lettermen. The passes were mailed today.

The selection of Edwards for the pass bearing No. 1 automatically designated him as the greatest football player ever to wear the Wittenberg colors. Edwards takes his Red Cats to Boston, Mass., next Saturday, hoping for his 18th straight victory and his 28th game without defeat.

While Reserve is in the east, the Buckeye sports spotlight will be focused on three Western conference teams playing within the state. Ohio State returns to the gridiron wars after a two weeks' layoff, meeting the Big Ten champion Northwestern team at Columbus, while Cincinnati's hapless Bearcats, losers of five in a row, meet the tough Indiana university team at the Queen City.

Case and Dayton university, who with Western Reserve make up Ohio's unbeaten and untied contingent at the halfway mark, face tough tasks Saturday. The Flyers, tied with Marshall for the Buckeye loop lead, meet the defending co-champion Ohio university Bobcats at Athens, while Case tangles with John Carroll at Cleveland in an Ohio conference clash. Baldwin-Wallace, leader of the Ohio loop with three straight, meets Akron's Zippers in a non-conference event at the Rubber City.

The Baldwin-Wallace crew dropped its fourth game in four years Saturday as Reserve triumphed 21 to 7, all the setbacks being at the hands of the Red Cats. Akron's small squad upset the dope bucket by handing a favored Toledo team a 21 to 7 defeat.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 — Red hot tip: Don't be surprised if Jimmy Foxx (don't forget that extra "X") does his home run hitting for Cleveland next season.... Vic Jones reports via the Boston Globe the Sox are willing to consider a trade which would bring Hal Trosky to Beantown... Who could Oscar Vitt of Newark be dickering with except the Boston Bees?

Jimmy Dawson and Garry Schumacher will run for a third term as chairman and secretary of the New York Baseball Writers' chapter, if Roosevelt does.... Joe McCarthy just can't forget next season will be his 13th as a big league manager.

A lot of folks think he made a mistake in going to Cincinnati, but congratulations to Bill McKechnie, just the same.... In our book he's one of the three smartest managers in the majors .... You've just got to put Herb Hudgins of Duke down as one of the outstanding ends in the country this year.... His only rival for Southern conference honors is Andy Bershak of North Carolina.

LOS ANGELES TEAM LEADS PRO LEAGUE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—The Los Angeles Bulldogs, armed with a powerful running attack and adroit forward passing, are top dogs in the American Professional Football league.

The 6-0 victory of the Rochester Tigers over the Boston Shamrocks, yesterday, had no effect on the Bulldogs commanding lead. The Pacific coast eleven has won all four of its games and the Tigers have won two and lost two to hold second place ahead of the Cincinnati Bengals, who tied the New York Yankees, 17-17 yesterday.

Ball bearings about the size of the head of an ordinary pin are being manufactured in Switzerland for use instead of jewel bearings in precision instruments.

McKechnie Was Pilot for Most Rival Managers

BY TOMMY DEVINE
United Press Writer

The "wise men" of baseball claim the St. Louis Cardinals did not reveal the full truth of their recent trade with the Brooklyn Dodgers. This deal sent shortstop Leo Durocher to the Dodgers for four players. The "wisemen" claim that the Dodgers have two more players promised them. "Pepper" Martin and possibly Enos Slaughter, the youthful outfielder of the Columbus Red Birds, who led the American Association in hitting during the past season.

When Steubenville High school's football team was beaten recently 16 to 0 by Erie (Pa.) East, it marked only the 12th time in 19 seasons that a team coached by the veteran Charley Cartledge had failed to score on an opponent.

Six cheerleaders at Bellaire High school recently went "on strike" when they were forced to pay their own way into the contests at which they were to "perform."

Bill McKechnie, the newly appointed manager of the Cincinnati Reds, has a unique distinction. Five of the other six National league pilots were under his wing sometime during their active major league playing days. The only pilot now at the helm of a National league club who did not play for the new Redleg manager is Bill Terry of the New York Giants.

Pie Traynor, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, played under McKechnie for five full campaigns, Charley Grimm of the Chicago Cubs, first-based for him for three years; Jimmy Wilson of Philadelphia and Frankie Frisch of St. Louis were on his Cardinal teams in 1928 and 1929; and Burleigh Grimes of the Brooklyn Dodgers, hurled for McKechnie at Boston in 1930.

McKechnie has one protege in the American league, Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Browns.

LEADER OF ARMY ENGINEERS QUITS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—A short, square-jawed soldier of 60, who saw federal expenditures for improvements on the nation's waterways stepped up from $50,000,000 to about $300,000,000 a year while chief of army engineers, relinquished his post today.

Major General Edward Murphy Markham—"Eddie" to his intimates in the service—began his career as an army engineer back in the "horse and buggy" days.

The $300,000,000 flood control plan for the lower Mississippi valley, started years ago, was finished in his administration.

Construction of the Fort Peck, Bonneville and Tygart dams, and the Muskingum river valley reservoirs in Ohio was begun during his term.

STOCKS DRIFT LOWER AGAIN

Steels and Motors Under Selling Pressure Following Opening Rally.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 — With buying power generally lacking, stocks drifted lower in today's market.

Selling in major steels and motors was an unsettling influence following a fair-sized rally at the start. While volume was comparatively small near the fourth hour, declines of 1 to 2 or more points were widely distributed.

Although foreign markets displayed selective improvement, they were none too confident.

Movements of bonds and commodities were uneven. Wheat and cotton futures skidded.

There was a bit more optimism in evidence regarding business, but this was barely sufficient to spur speculative forces. Liquidation of impaired margin accounts continued as a recovery brake.

Conspicuous share losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Acme Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Republic, Chrysler, United Airlines, American Can, Westinghouse, du Pont, Chesapeake & Ohio, Lima Locomotive and Johns-Manville.

St. Joseph Lead and National Lead lost ground as producers, for the second time in two weeks, cut the price of this staple 1-4 of a cent a pound.

Usually well-informed circles expressed satisfaction with more favorable reports from London, where there was believed by some to have been a considerable amount of necessitous selling, contributing to the recent market decline.

Reports over the week-end, one Wall Street source said, indicated that a London situation had been patched up.

Not overlooked were figures of the department of commerce disclosing daily average sales of general merchandise in small towns and rural areas for September were about 6 3-2 per cent above the same month a year ago.

A MAN'S HOUSE

This is the time of the year when the average woman is recovering from the trials and terrors of "moving day" and her husband is trying to adjust himself to the new surroundings—and to look cheerful about it.

You can tell at a glance who is the ruling spirit of the family, and whether the new home is to be a man's house or a woman's house.

A man's house! What a different thing it is from a woman's house!

You know what kind of a house a woman likes—dainty, chummy, frivolous. A house full of clothes closets, and little "conveniences," and blue Delft kitchenware. A cozy nest, filled with antiques, and silver, and photographs and embroidered linens, and crowded with silk cushions. A house that can be kept "pretty!"

A man likes a house big and roomy and comfortable—like his shoes! He likes to be able to see from one room to the other. He likes long vistas and honest open fireplaces that burn without smoking, and big, broad verandas to loll on.

He likes big, whole-portion beds—not just fluffy, apologetic day-beds that look as if they were ashamed of being beds—and trying to deny it. He likes big, watertight bathrooms that he can splash around in, without fear of ruining the ceiling of the room below.

A man doesn't care whether the kitchen is blue or white or pea-green—but he doesn't want it so dainty that he can't go into it and spread things around, and make a mess every time he gets a cooking complex.

He likes floors that he can walk around on without skidding, and chairs that don't look as if they would break under him, and he doesn't care whether the walls are done in plain pottery or Italian or Colonial—but he does want it well lighted (without shades and lamps and things).

A man likes everything about [illegible] and comfortable—[illegible] chairs, doors, [illegible] cushions [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] for dust!"

A woman wants a house, and all the women voted and voted and voted for a house, and [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible]

CHURCH CHOIRS AT CRESTLINE

Marion Church Singers Attend Unique Musical Festival.

Seventy members of the Emanuel Lutheran church, including the members of the junior and senior choirs, went to Crestline yesterday afternoon for the fourth annual Lutheran choir festival. The festival is the only strictly Lutheran affair of its kind in the American Lutheran church. Trinity church was filled to capacity and many persons were turned away.

Two hundred and eighty-two singers in choirs of Marion, Upper Sandusky, Ashland, Arlington, Fostoria, Bucyrus, Crestline, Cardington, Windfall and Chatfield sang in the massed choir numbers at the close of the festival.

Rev. Harold Moench of Arlington was reelected president of the festival association. Herman P. Watson of Marion was elected of the newly-created office of vice president and Miss Gertrude Wraber of Crestline was elected secretary.

An invitation was accepted to hold the festival next October at St. Paul's church in Upper Sandusky. The annual spring meeting of directors will be called by the president.

Professor Ellis Snyder of Capital university in Columbus and Miss Weaver directed the massed choir selections. At the supper hour Mr. Snyder spoke briefly, stating that persons who sing have a duty to perform to their church and that to them choir service should be a personal imperative.

Those who attended from Marion were the following: Emanuel senior choir, Mrs. Carlton Case, Miss Ruth Craven, Miss Helen Louise Albrecht, Mrs. Urton Anderson, Mrs John Loeffert, Mrs Curtis Laubner Sr., Mrs F. J. Schill, Mrs. J. H. Bolinger, Mrs. H. L. Albrecht, Mrs. Lloyd Mautz, Mrs Lelia MacDonald, Mrs Carl Campbell, Miss Estella Yake, William Ackerman, J. G. Lytle, H. L. Albrecht, Lloyd Mautz, Carl Campbell, Aaron Green, John Lodwig, Curtis Laubner Jr. and Carlton Case; Emanuel junior choir, Mary Ann Roecker, Norma Webb, Robert Baldauf, Danny Roecker, Jean Drake, Ruth Schiller, Gladys Dawson, Betty Cahill, Donna Ruth Sinning, Paul Twigg, Jack Loeffert, Dorothy Tron, Helen Webb, Genevieve Graham, Faith and Hope Line, Mary Louise Johnson, Helen Rengert, Vernal Orth, Junior Anderson, Naomi Mitchell, Sarah Lou Feighley, Mary Webb, Joan Laubner and Mary Louise Short, guests, Mr and Mrs Ivan Graham, Mr. and Mrs H. F. Baldauf, Mr. and Mrs Harvey Sinning, Mr. and Mrs Victor Tron, J. H Bolinger, Mrs David Jenner, Mr. and Mrs Vernoil Orth, Mrs J. Poster Depicts "Forward With Youth" Movement in Which Marion Y Joins Hale Points to Need of Work Carried On by Association.

Earl N. Hale, secretary of the Marion Y. M. C. A., has written the following article outlining the need for the character-building activities of the organization which is seeking $12,450 in a financial campaign starting today.

"The Marion Y. M. C. A., keeping step with associations over the world, has joined the Y. M. C. A. "Forward with Youth" movement. Last January at a world conference of Young Men's Christian associations held in Mysore, India, the forward movement was inaugurated.

"All over the world today youth is stirring. In Europe and Asia millions are marching to the strains of martial music. In America, as in the rest of the world, youth has come to grips with problems of adjustment to a new world, marked by swift changes — social, technological, economic and even religious. Not four miles, but 600 miles per hour is the speed at which youth is able to travel today. That is the tempo, too, to which youth must adjust itself in this complex age.

"Recognizing that never was the work of character training more important than during this time of swift change the Y. M. C. A. determined upon an aggressive forward program. Even in a time of terrific change, eternal principles do not change and fundamental principles of morality, integrity, and righteousness are never outmoded.

During these days, the Y. M. C. A. stands steadfastly, steadying, strengthening and influencing for good the man of today and the man of tomorrow.

Whether the energy of our youth leads to usefulness or to destruction, whether the power for good or the tendency for evil in our young men of tomorrow wins out, is usually determined by influences surrounding them during their early years. Juvenile delinquency is a costly problem today. Shall we spend more millions to fight hardened criminals, or only a few thousands to prevent delinquency and crime?

Physical activities, wholesome entertainment, Bible study, self expression in responsible, unselfish service under wise, friendly and consecrated guidance, are some of the methods which have established the success of the Y. M. C. A. in the transformation of energy into character.

The slogan and poster for the 1937 financial campaign of the Marion Y. M. C. A., to get under way at a kick-off dinner tonight, are shown in the drawing above.

YOUTH ARRESTED ON AUTO THEFT CHARGE

Captured by Car Owner, Pleads Guilty and Is Held to Grand Jury.

Doyle Henderson, 19, of Campbell road is being held by police today after having been captured by Jess Williams, 20, of Newmans while driving a car which Williams said was his property. The capture was effected in McKinley park after a chase that began near Church and Prospect streets.

Henderson was arraigned in municipal court this morning on a charge of automobile stealing filed by Williams. After pleading guilty to the charge he was bound over to the grand jury and bond was set at $1,000 by Municipal Judge Martin.

Two 16-year-old Marion boys were implicated in the automobile theft in a statement made by Henderson, police said. Both were arrested at their homes by police. They are being held at the county detention home and are to be taken before Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast this afternoon, Police Chief Marks said.

Williams, who was aided by two companions, Clyde Mosure, 20 of near Cardington and Clifton Bosart, 17, of Green Camp in capturing Henderson, had left a midnight show when he discovered his automobile missing. He had parked it in the city lot and just after finding it was gone he noticed it pass by, Williams told police.

"We watched the car go west on Church street and turn south on Pearl," Williams said. "We got Mosure's car which was parked nearby and trailed my automobile. The car went south and then east to the McKinley park drive, where we finally came abreast with it and forced the driver to the curb."

"I jumped out and ran back to my car and asked the driver what he was doing with it. He tried to tell me that it was his own car and then with the help of Mosure and Bosart, we pulled him from behind the wheel and took him to the police station," Williams related.

Henderson, under police questioning, admitted taking the automobile, saying that he was "just going for a ride" police said. He implicated the other youths who were picked up later.

BRUNET RELEASED IN MUTILATION CASE

Woman Ordered To Appear Before Grand Jury in Attack on Advertising Executive.

By The Associated Press

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 18—Police released Mrs. Lita D. Hamlyn, attractive 38-year-old brunet, today after questioning her for 21 hours in connection with a mutilation attack on Wilbur E. Johnson, 54, wealthy advertising executive.

Inspector Harold R. King of the Nassau county police said the woman, mother of a 20-year-old son, had been subpoenaed to appear before a grand jury Tuesday.

Johnson refused to name his assailant, Inspector King said.

District Attorney Martin W. Littleton said the attack occurred Saturday night while Johnson and Mrs. Hamlyn were cruising in Long Island sound on Johnson's 50-foot, $25,000 cruiser, Billikin IV.

Both related, Littleton said, they were alone on the boat but neither could explain what had happened. The district attorney said Johnson told him they had had a couple of drinks and that he had fallen asleep and awoke to find he had been mutilated.

Despite the injury, Johnson, a man of strong build, piloted the cruiser to shore and rode home in a taxi. His two adult sons, summoned physicians, who said he was in a serious but not critical condition from loss of blood.

Johnson is a widower. Mrs. Hamlyn, wife of a painter, had worked for Johnson for a short time as housekeeper.

ness as a schoolboy through the operation of a theater in the high school auditorium of his home town, Gnadenhutten, O., continued theater work on a part-time basis while attending Ohio university three years, and subsequently served as theater manager in Marion, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Reading, Pa., Akron, Cleveland, Kokomo and Appleton, Wis.

His parents told today how he originated a weekly paper for children while at Appleton, Wis., and in his efforts to have the paper made a national publication he went to the producers of the March of Time. The paper idea was not carried out at once, but the interview resulted in Mr. Sindlinger being offered a promotional position with the corporation. Later his idea for the publication for children developed into the March of Time's "Photo Reporter."

Mr. Sindlinger, while serving as theater manager, won five national exploitation contests on various feature pictures.

He and his wife, the former Thelma Joliff of Marion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Joliff of 302 Blaine avenue, and their three children, Edward, 6, Norman, 7, and Jacqueline, 9, live at Forest Hills, New York. They spent two weeks in Marion last summer.

Mr. Sindlinger's father has been superintendent of the Kirkpatrick school for four years and previously was superintendent at Morral school for six years.

DIMPLED BLOND MANVILLE'S FIFTH

Asbestos Heir To Wed Former Entertainer After Divorcing Fourth.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—Tommy Manville, who says he can't withstand blonds or dimples, is ready for his fifth trip to the altar—as soon as his divorce from the fourth Mrs. Manville is final.

The asbestos heir said his hausfrau No. 5 would be Miss Nina Pierson, 25, of Duluth, Minn., a former entertainer who, true to the Manville tradition, is both blond and dimpled.

Miss Pierson, the former Mrs. Paul Levitson, said she returned here from England three days ago because the English wouldn't recognize her Mexican divorce and permit her to marry an English manufacturer.

But Miss Pierson has forgiven them already.

"I'm going to marry Tommy within 10 days," she said. "Maybe my divorce is no good in England, but it's all right here."

The collection now stands at $36,118.29, last week's payments having been $8,730.19. The total collection for the last half of 1936 was approximately $52,000. Mr. Cole warned that there will be no extension after Oct. 30.

RACE TRACK KEPT CLOSED BY TROOPS

Million Dollar Oval Under Guard; Governor Proclaims "State of Insurrection."

By The Associated Press

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 18—Steel-helmented national guardsmen, equipped with tear gas and riot sticks, patrolled Narragansett race track today to prevent opening of the rich plant.

Three hundred guardsmen, under command of adjutant general Herbert R. Dean and Col. Earl C. Webster, moved into the area yesterday after Gov. Robert E. Quinn proclaimed "a state of insurrection" existed at the million dollar track.

The troops had hardly taken their positions when Henry E. Curvin, director of public safety in Pawtucket and Democratic majority leader in the Rhode Island house, announced he had sent a letter to the governor threatening to bring impeachment proceedings against him for ordering out the militia.

The governor's proclamation declared the "danger" of attendance of "gangsters, criminals and persons of ill repute" at the fall meeting, scheduled to open this afternoon, would cause "injury to our citizens" which civil authorities would be "unable to compete with."

The proclamation followed a state supreme court decision setting aside an order of the state racing division suspending the track's license and ordering removal of Walter E. O'Hara as managing director.

BANK BANDIT DIES IN TOLEDO HOSPITAL

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 18 — Joe Muzzio, alias Cowboy Hill, one of the most notorious bank bandits of northwestern Ohio, died last night in county hospital of cancer.

He was released from Ohio penitentiary last July on a conditional parole on recommendation of the prison physician and was brought to Toledo.

He had been serving a 1 to 15 year sentence for the Delta, O., bank robbery in 1920.

Muzzio's raids on banks in northern Ohio gave him newspaper headlines for more than two years.

While every peace officer in Ohio was seeking him, Hill entered one of his boats in a race at the St. Clair flats. The boat won and he received a cup.

OHIOANS SAY BRADY TALKED WITH CONN

Identify Photos of Slain Gangster as Man Seen With Murdered Patrolman.

By The Associated Press

CAMBRIDGE, O., Oct. 18—Donald Whitacre and William Harris, Barnesville, O., cattle buyers, said today they had "positively" identified photographs of Al Brady, slain Indiana gang chief, as the driver of an automobile from which George Conn, Ohio highway patrolman, was shot to death last month.

Whitacre and Harris, who drove past the car while Conn was questioning two men near Freeport, Harrison county, previously had failed to identify Brady's pictures. They said that new photographs, supplied by the federal bureau of investigation, enabled them to identify the Indiana desperado.

Brady was killed by federal agents in Bangor, Me., last Tuesday. James Dalhover, a Brady gangster captured in the same gun battle in which Clarence Shafer Jr., also was killed, first was reported as confessing the Conn killing but later repudiated the admission.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18—Col. Lynn Black of the Ohio highway patrol said today that he "didn't take much stock" in the "positive" identification by Donald Whitacre and William Harris, Barnesville cattle buyers, of gangster Al Brady as the driver of an automobile from which Patrolman George Conn was shot to death last month.

"When Whitacre and Harris drove by the car where Patrolman Conn was last seen alive," Col. Black said, "they had only a fleeting glance at the men in the auto and another one in a field. They told us that the man in the driver's seat had a map in front of him, which hid part of his face, and that they didn't get a good look at him. The man in the field was too far away to be described accurately, they said."

PRISONER OF ZENDA AT PALACE IS BEST PICTURE IN MONTHS

The best picture to flash across the Palace screen in many weeks is "The Prisoner of Zenda," current through Tuesday. A faultless cast, handled by an able director, John Cromwell, given excellent story treatment and dialogue, sets built on a scale of grandeur, and photographer James Wong Howe, turns out a "must see" picture. The bill includes a series of shorts, Eddie Peabody in "Hula Heaven," the Christiani family in "Equestrian Acrobats," and a novelty dealing with stunt thrillers, and a newsreel which includes shots of the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Ronald Colman turns in a four-star performance in the dual role of an Englishman bent on a fishing holiday and the king who becomes the prisoner of Zenda. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. acquits himself with the dash and fire of his famous father in the role of "Rupert of Hentzau," plotter against the rightful king but willing to plot equally as cleverly with the Englishman if to do so will better his cause. C. Aubrey Smith gives his usual distinguished performance as the faithful subject, and David Niven handles adeptly the role of another supporter of the king. Raymond Massey is perfect as the Machiavellian brother "Michael" who plots to do away with the king and seize the throne. Lovely Madeline Carroll has the role of the "Princess Flavia," betrothed of the king who falls deeply in love with his double, and Mary Astor has a sympathetic role as the woman in love with Massey who enables the supporters of the king to put him on the throne and ultimately brings about his death at the hands of Hentzau.

The king and the Englishman meet on the eve of the king's coronation. Knowing the king's fondness for drink, Michael's henchmen drug the wine. Faced with no king for coronation day, Smith and Niven press the English double to go through with the ceremony. He succeeds even in fooling Michael, but Hentzau finds the king sleeping off the potion and takes him prisoner to Zenda, arranging for a handsome reward from Michael. Miss Astor, anxious that Michael not be involved in the plot against the king, reveals the plans to the Englishman and arranges for the king's rescue from Zenda. The next scenes of the rescue are gripping with suspense, as the Englishman effects the rescue, with gallant swordplay. For a brief moment the princess, told of the deception, considers eloping to England, but remembers her duty as a princess. H. H.

ROME SAYS 40,000 FIGHT FOR FRANCO

List Number as Authentic and Attack "Fantastic Figures" Published Abroad.

By The Associated Press

ROME, Oct. 18—The number of Italian volunteers in Spain was put at about 40,000, including both combattants and noncombattants, today by the semi-official "diplomatic information," edited by the official (Stefani) news agency.

A special bulletin was issued to combat what were called "fantastic figures" published abroad.

Of the 40,000, it said: "This is the truth which fears no denial from any source — verified and verifiable," adding that "Valencia's volunteers are much more numerous."

The announcement attacked the British Lloyd George for allegedly exaggerating the number of Italian volunteers with insurgents, declaring:

"It is serious and scandalous that a former British premier, like Lloyd George who is old enough to be sober and prudent, should in a recent speech give his hearers fantastic figures on Italian volunteers in Spain."

TWO MOTORISTS ARRESTED HERE

Two motorists, one of whom was allegedly driving a car which figured in a traffic collision, were arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated over the week-end by police. William L. McFarland, according to the police report, was driving north on Main street and his car collided with a southbound automobile driven by Gloyd Dearth of 614 Adams street. Both cars were damaged about the left rear side and were taken to the McDaniel Motor Co. garage on West Center street.

Pilots Based at Denver

Pilot Woodgerd and Co-Pilot Adams both were based at Denver, airlines officials there said today.

Woodgerd, about 38, is married. Adams is unmarried.

Woodgerd has been a United Airlines pilot 10 years. He was transferred to Denver from Chicago, C. M. Wall, assistant central division superintendent, said.

"The plane carried six hours of fuel when it left Cheyenne," an employe said. "The plane was equipped with powerful landing lights and flares. It may easily have landed safely in a remote district. It is possible the radio is temporarily out of commission, which would explain why nothing has been heard from the missing plane."

SIX ANSWER CALL AT REVIVAL SERVICE

Report Interest Increasing at Holiness Church.

Six persons responded to an altar call following the evening service Sunday at the First Pilgrim Holiness church at Bennett and Waterloo streets. Rev. H. L. Holtzapple, evangelist, of Lima preached at the morning and evening services. Interest is increasing nightly. Special services will be held each night this week, beginning at 7:30. Special musical numbers will feature each service.

Yesterday morning Rev. Holtzapple spoke on the theme, "The privilege the Gospel affords: that of having the old nature of sin purged from the being." In the evening his text was "He that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin."

"The blackness of darkness on earth or hell is the product of rejected light," he said. The danger of neglecting the reproving of the Lord is fatal, it sends the soul to hell, he pointed out.

FARMERS LIVE WELL DUE TO HOME FOOD

Experts Include Crawford County in Survey of U. S. Living Conditions.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—A survey of farm families, including those in three Ohio counties, caused Dr. Louise Stanley of the home economics bureau to assert today that home-produced food is a strong factor in enabling farmers to live better than city residents.

Dr. Stanley said the survey was made in 66 farm counties selected as being typical of the nation as a whole. She said the Ohio counties were Crawford, Knox and Richland, chosen as representative of general farming.

"One of the most interesting results of this work, said Dr. Stanley, "is the way it brings sharply to attention the value of home-produced food, a strong factor in giving a better balanced diet to the farm families, enabling them to live better than city folks."

NAVY OPENS STATION HERE

Marion Will Be Headquarters for 5-County Recruiting District.

A permanent recruiting sub-station in Marion and five nearby cities was opened in the post-office basement this morning by the United States navy with H. E. [illegible] of Lima, chief boatswain's mate, temporarily in charge. The station is in line with the navy's announced intention of building its total manpower to 105,000 by June 30. It follows establishment of a temporary station here which has been operated on alternate week-ends.

Mr. Trusler, who is in charge of the Lima sub-station in which Marion county was included prior to establishment of the station here, will be replaced in two or three weeks by a permanent recruiting officer. Mr. Trusler is still in charge of the Lima station, which under the new set-up will have six counties instead of 11 as in the past.

The counties in the Marion district have not been determined as yet, Mr. Trusler said. Marion was selected for the station because of the success of the previous permanent station which was abandoned several years ago and because of the relatively dense population here, Mr. Trusler said.

The station is located in the basement and may be reached through the main floor lobby through the door just north of the postmaster's office. Appropriately enough, the sharply winding circular steel stairway leading from the lobby to the basement is similar to those on ships.

The office will be open from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. Monday through Friday with an hour off for lunch hour and from 9 a. m. till noon on Saturdays.

Applicants from Marion district will go from here directly to Cincinnati, the regional headquarters, instead of to Lima as in the past. During the last four months there have been 12 applications from this district.

In regard to the navy's enlistment program, Mr. Trusler said the manpower now stands at approximately 100,000. As an indication of the eagerness of young men to serve, he pointed out that from 85 to 90 per cent of the men reenlist.

The officer who will be permanently in charge here is now in training in the recruiter's school at Norfolk, Va., Mr. Trusler said.

Lake Iron Ore Shipping Nears Record 1929 Mark

17 TONS AT ONE GRAB

The giant unloaders at the Cleveland ore docks, grabbing 17 tons of ore at a time, quickly empty a Great Lakes freighter of its 10,000-ton cargo.

The following article on Great Lakes shipping is by Paul F. Swank, former member of The Star editorial staff and now one of the editorial executives of The Associated Press bureau in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—The hungry, white-hot blast furnaces in the steel mills at the foot of the Great Lakes must be fed.

Sleek 600-foot freighters are bringing the ore from northern Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin ranges this year at the greatest rate since 1929. More than 60,000,000 tons will be carried—only 6,000,000 less than the all-time high.

The Great Lakes ore and coal traffic is a specialized business. Docks and ships are built specially to meet needs for quick movement. Every operation is on a schedule worked out to the minute—from the time huge steam shovels bite into the mountain of ore on the northern ranges until it is dumped into the steel mill blast furnace.

Thousands Employed.

Night and day the big loading docks, some of them more than a mile long, send forth their procession of heavily laden ore ships from Ashland and Superior, Wis., Duluth and Two Harbors, Minn., and Escanaba and Marquette, Mich.

Night and day 17-ton grabs are busy scooping this ore from the ships at the great unloading docks on Lakes Erie and Michigan.

The ore unloaded, massive machinery then picks up a car load of coal every minute, and dumps it into the hold of the cargo ship for the return trip. Coal loadings, themselves, this year are surpassing 1929 figures.

All these operations give employment to hundreds of thousands of men throughout the Great Lakes region. Railroad engineers, firemen, mechanics, shop and track men, dock men and sailors—all depend on the iron and coal trade for their livelihood.

Long-Geared Craft.

Great Lakes bulk freighters are built as long as engineering design and navigation conditions permit. The typical bulk freighter is about 600 feet long, 60 to 65 feet wide and 32 feet deep.

The pilot house occupies the extreme fore end of the ship and the propelling machinery the extreme after end, leaving the intervening space for cargo. Hatches cover the cargo section. They extend nearly the full width of the boat, and when loading or unloading, the hatch covers are removed making the deck almost completely open. A ship of this type carries between 11,000 and 14,000 gross tons of ore.

Load in a Hurry.

As the freighter pulls into the ore docks, chutes are let down and ore from some 350 bins flows into the cargo hold. Ordinarily about four hours is required to load a 600-foot vessel, but the record is held by the D. G. Keer of the Pittsburgh Steamship Co. The Keer in 1921 took 12,507 gross tons of ore at Two Harbors, Minn., in 16½ minutes.

The gargantuan unloading equipment works with efficiency comparable to the loading. It consists of five or six electric devices with a 17-ton self-filling grab bucket.

With an operator, the bucket goes into the hold, fills itself, comes up, moves back over the dock and empties its load into a receiving hopper. The hopper, in turn, dumps the ore into a car for its trip to the steel plant where blast furnaces turn it into pig iron for the processing of steel.

—AMERICA AND THE LEAGUE—

League Carries On Without America

This is the second in a series of three articles dealing with the history of the League of Nations.

By CHARLES NORMAN
Associated Press Writer.

IT WAS a proud moment for President Wilson on that November day in 1920 when he convened the first ordinary assembly of the League of Nations in Geneva, permanent home of the world peace organization.

Forty-two nations were represented. Before the year was out, six more were to be admitted to membership. Few could foresee then that within another year Wilson's hopes for American adherence to the league he had fathered—the crowning work of his life—would go glimmering in defeat at the hands of the United States senate.

But despite American aloofness, the work of the league went on. There were many triumphs in store for it, many setbacks. There were some days when the outlook for its existence seemed hopeless.

League Acts in 42 Crises.

In the period 1920-37, the league has functioned with varying success in 42 international crises, ranging in significance from the Aland islands dispute between Sweden and Finland (which resulted in a notable gain in league prestige) through German rearmament, two Sino-Japanese conflicts, the war between Bolivia and Paraguay, the Italo-Ethiopian war and the Spanish crisis.

Under the Treaty of Versailles, the Saar Basin, important mining district, was governed by the league for 15 years pending a plebiscite held January 13, 1935, which resulted in its adhesion to Germany. An international police force, composed of contingents from the United Kingdom, Italy, the Netherlands and Sweden, maintained order.

In the dispute between Poland and Lithuania over Vilna, 1920-22, the league's offer of a plebiscite under the protection of an international force was rejected by both governments. In addition, Soviet Russia threatened war if an interEuropean force were assembled near its frontier.

The Free City of Danzig, important as an outlet to the sea for Polish trade is under the protection of the league, which guarantees its constitution. A high commissioner is appointed by the league council for three years.

The protection of minorities, a sore point in European negotiations for centuries, remains one of the most important tasks of the league.

Provision for Sanctions.

The league covenant contains also provisions for the mutual protection of member states. Article 16 declares:

"Should any member of the league resort to war . . . it shall . . . be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members . . . which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations . . ."

The article further provides:

"It shall be the duty of the council in such case to recommend to the several governments concerned what effective military, naval or air force the members of the league shall severally contribute . . ."

The Ethiopian Failure.

What happened when Italy invaded Ethiopia and this article was invoked? The question of military aid never came up, the members of the league contenting themselves with the application of economic sanctions against needed raw materials.

Oil, however, was not included in the proscribed commodities, and oil, many observers have stated, decided the Ethiopian issue in favor of Italy.

Had Italy, severely hampered in its operations by the imposition of sanctions, bogged down in Ethiopia, the prestige of the league would have been inculculable. As it was, the Italian victory raised the cry that the league was dead.

Tomorrow: U. S.-League Cooperation Against Japan.

WILSON AND POINCARE
The American and French Presidents are shown together in Paris just after the World war when Wilson at the Versailles conference, insisted upon inclusion of the covenant of the League of Nations in the post-war treaty.

Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Smith To Mark Golden Wedding

Marion friends of Dr. and Mrs. Albert Edwin Smith, among them graduates of Ohio Northern university of which Dr. Smith was president for a quarter of a century and members of Epworth M. E. church which he served from 1899 to 1905, have been invited to their golden wedding anniversary celebration Tuesday, Oct. 26, at the home of their eldest son, Prof. E. Vergon Smith of 803 South Main street in Ada. They will receive their friends from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith graduated together from Ohio Wesleyan university 50 years ago last June 12 and were married at the bride's home in Delaware the following October by their favorite professor in college, Dr. L. D. McCabe. Mrs. Smith was Miss Harriet Vergon before her marriage.

In 1899 Dr. Smith came to Epworth M. E. church of Marion and served as pastor until 1905 when he was called to accept the presidency of Ohio Northern university at Ada. He joined the Central Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal church 50 years ago last month and was appointed to the York Center circuit in Union county. After nearly four years there he was changed to Celina and after a little more than three years there he was moved to Epworth church in Toledo to serve as the first pastor. Later he served four years in Defiance, coming to Marion from there.

For the last seven years Dr. Smith has held the retired relation in the Ohio annual conference and has been president emeritus of Ohio Northern university. He and Mrs. Smith make their home in Lakeside during the summer and at Winter Haven, Fla., during the winter.

They have five living children, Professor Smith of Ada, Mrs. Wilbert J. Huff of Silver Spring, Md., Paul V. Smith of Findlay, Mrs. L. B. Ernsberger of Findlay and Rev. Benjamin V. Smith of Leipsic.

No personal invitations to the golden anniversary have been issued, but a general invitation has gone out to all their friends to join them, either by calling in person or sending greetings.

MILLIONS MORE FOR FINER TOBACCOS!

IS IT GOOD BUSINESS TO BUY COSTLIER TOBACCOS FOR CAMELS?

the answer is:

Camels are the Largest-Selling cigarette in America

The pleasure you get out of a cigarette depends on what's put in it. And in the case of Camels that means finer, costlier tobaccos!

THROUGH the years, Camel has consistently spent millions of dollars more for choice, ripe tobaccos!

That represents a way of doing business that smokers understand and appreciate. Millions of smokers have responded to the appeal of Camel's choice quality. Because of it, Camels have an attraction all their own!

It's a happy experience to have confidence in your cigarette . . . to know that you are getting the good things out of smoking that you hope for. The plain fact that Camel does spend millions of dollars more for ripe, more costly tobaccos appeals to the common sense of American men and women.

It is good business!

"YOU BET I've been careful about my nerves. Smoke? All I want to. My cigarette is Camel." says LOU GEHRIG, Baseball's Iron Man. "With Camels I don't worry about jangled nerves."

"I SMOKE Camels and my nerves stay serene and unruffled. You see, I don't want to have those irritating little nervous habits," says window display expert, POLLY PERRIT.

"FROM ANY angle, Camel is the cigarette for yours truly. When I'm tired, I light a Camel and back to work I go with a 'lift' in energy." FRANK MULLADY, auto manufacturer says.

"AS A fashion designer spending long night hours creating new styles, I've grown to depend on the mellow companionship Camels give me," says the famous designer, RENEE MONTAGUE.

"I'VE BEEN a sports reporter for twenty-five years," says JAMES GOULD. "And for twenty-three of those years—right from the time Camels were first brought out—I've been a steady Camel smoker. Camels don't tire my taste."

Of Vital Importance to Marion

"FORWARD With Youth" is the slogan adopted for the annual Y. M. C. A. campaign for maintenance funds and those three words convey a momentous message to all Marion residents. It is filled with meaning and significance, especially in connection with this campaign, for in the work of helping boys and young men on the way to lives of honor and achievement, the Y. M. C. A. has a place of eminence.

A folder issued by the campaign committee lists in detail the numerous activities and branches of service in the Marion Y. M. C. A. program and also gives a financial statement showing annual receipts and expenditures. This information provides evidence that much is accomplished at a minimum of cost, which is proof of efficient and economical management.

Collections from membership fees represent a comparatively small part of the revenue required for operations, and that is an indication of the broad scope of service performed by the Y. M. C. A. Its benefits are not limited to members, but are extended to virtually everybody in Marion. The record for last year shows that the building was used by 188 different groups of young people as a meeting place and for various activities. In addition, adult groups assemble there, so that the Y. M. C. A. is truly a community center for all persons interested in affairs helpful to themselves and their neighbors.

In order that this program so essential to Marion may be adequately maintained, it is necessary to ask citizens each year to contribute enough to make up the revenue needed in addition to receipts from memberships, rentals and a few minor miscellaneous sources. For the coming year the subscriptions sought total $12,450 and it is to reach that goal that solicitors will start their campaign tomorrow. A week has been allotted for completion of the work and there is every reason to believe that final reports will spell success and assure full operation of the Y. M. C. A. during the next year.

Ready cooperation of citizens generally is essential and should be given the solicitors, who are not only subscribing to the fund but are also generously contributing time and effort. This they are doing gladly for Marion and its young people. They should be received in the same spirit of good citizenship and thus be enabled to complete their work without unnecessary delay.

Slight Difference of Opinion

IF LABOR insists on a wage and hour law, if farmers want further crop control—and President Roosevelt indicates they have told him they do—then some leaders of labor and agriculture have been kept in the dark.

At the same moment the President was reviewing the "necessity" for crop control in his recent speech, L. J. Taber, speaking at Portsmouth, O., on behalf of the national grange which he represents, said:

"The Roosevelt administration's philosophy of scarity in dealing with agriculture is unsound and unhealthy. What we need today is a prosperity based on abundance and not on scracity. Fewer crops won't solve the problem of the underfed and the poorly housed. Any new farm bill which becomes national law must be based on cooperation and not regimentation. Regimentation will destroy our American processes of life as we know them. -I am sick and tired of seeing empty granaries up and down the nation and seeing Argentine corn in America's chicken coops."

As for labor's attitude on the wage and hour bill, Matthew Woll in the American Federation of Labor convention at Denver a few days ago expressed opposition. "The people have recourse to congress but virtually none to a board or bureau," he said, explaining that regulation and bureaucracy seem to go together.

He predicted that labor "would never again voluntarily submit itself to the whims of bureaucratic decisions and findings of any federal board."

On the Wing

UNLESS more than a hundred million Americans are wrong, in 25 more years hundreds of thousands of them will own an airplane, along with one or more automobiles.

But, if a hundred million Americans aren't going to be wrong, that airplane will have to be turned out in mass production. One airplane manufacturer, pioneering in low cost machines for the general public, already has anticipated the future by announcing a brand new model for 1938. As automobile manufacturers do, furthermore, he's bringing out his new model now, to ward off a seasonal slump.

Chances are that this nation's millions of potential birdmen, waiting for that simply operated, fool proof, low cost plane of their dreams never thought about having to decide each year whether to make the old crate last till the next new model came out or to trade it in now and start another year or year and a half of easy payments. Yet, if experience means anything, that's how the world will take to the air—the same way it took to the highway—deferred payments and the lure of a shiny new triumph once each year to keep the production lines moving.

What It Means:

Writer Views America's Present Foreign Policy in Comparison with 20 Years Ago.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Shut your eyes on the international din of the moment, turn back the clock 20-odd years, and you glimpse Woodrow Wilson trying to assert America's rights in the community of nations without taking sides in a war.

Everybody knows now that he failed in that effort, and America moved inevitably into the world conflict.

But the same broad question that faced Wilson in 1914 faces Roosevelt today.

MORGAN BEATTY

How can America remain at peace?

Nobody can answer that question, of course, but there are similarities and differences in the world situation in 1914 and in 1937 that will help Roosevelt chart a course for the United States.

Today the big powers of the world are rapidly rearming themselves with new and terrible machines of war, just as they were in 1914. In those days the nations were just beginning to practice with the comparatively new machine-gun, airplane, zeppelin and submarine. Today they're experimenting with refined samples of the same things—"flying fortresses," "pocket battleships" and "motorized armies."

And then, as now the president was forced to divert his attention frequently from the domestic political scene—a scene in which he preferred to operate. Wilson preached the "new freedom;" Roosevelt upholds the "new deal."

In 1914, the Balkan war was freshly recorded on the pages of history—a sinister prelude of what was to come. What can be said today of the conquest of Ethiopia, the Spanish civil war, and the Sino-Japanese warfare in the Orient?

Again nobody knows the answer. As a matter of fact, when we ask that question we come to the end of possible similarities between turbulent 1914 and equally disturbed 1937.

Changed Scene.

The common props on the international stage in 1914 were imperial governments, the delicate balance of power between the central powers and the entente of Europe, the "open door" in China, the Monroe doctrine in the Americas, and so on, much as it was in Queen Victoria's era.

But the war changed all that. Now we have a League of Nations. We have the labels of communism, fascism, and democracy to mark off blocs of world powers, and there's no delicate balance of power between them, merely vague hostility and distrust.

We have a train of post-war treaties committing the influential powers of the earth to national policies of peace. And yet some of the signers of those treaties are actually at war without so much as breaking off formal relations with each other or formally declaring hostilities.

And where does this confused situation leave President Roosevelt in his announced desire to fashion an American foreign policy with peace as its keystone?

Treaties Broken.

First of all Roosevelt was in Wilson's cabinet as an assistant secretary of the navy. He says himself that he learned in Wilson's troubled day some of the things to do, and other things "not to do."

He knows:

1. America did not save the world for democracy even though she entered the World war to attain that ideal.
2. The League of Nations, as now set up, may be a moral force for peace, but it definitely has failed to stop powerful states bent on getting what they want by force.
3. No important peace treaties since the World war—the Kellogg-Briand pact, the Nine-Power pact, the Four-Power Pacific treaty, Locarno—has yet prevented some of the nations that signed them from taking up arms against each other.
4. Most post-war international conferences have failed to put the world's political and economical machinery in a sane balance.
5. The Versailles peace treaty ending the World war did not alter human nature; it merely redrew the world map, and some impartial observers think it is a breeder of war.
6. A revised Monroe doctrine which puts all American republics on an even footing is the topmost star in the American diplomatic crown.
7. The "open door" for trade in China for all nations may or may not be open the next time we take hold of its latch.

Moral Boycott.

Therefore the President has turned to a new instrument—a moral boycott against war-makers. His state department has told the League of Nations we are willing to stand up with other peace-loving nations and be counted for peace.

But neither the President nor the state department has committed us to a policy of fighting for peace. Nor have they been willing to try to cut off the supplies of warlike nations, that is, to carry on an economic boycott.

And that means we are not committed to use force against any nation, and we won't use it, unless—well, it is anybody's guess what would make us go to war.

As Japan Sees It

Latest Move of U. S. Opposing Japanese Police Is Seen as Adding Fresh Fuel to Hatred.

From The New York Herald Tribune.

ONCE more the American government has gone on record in opposition to a major policy of Japan. This list is impressive:

1905. The United States, under President Theodore Roosevelt, took the lead in inducing Japan to make peace with Russia at a time when Japanese leaders believed that the complete defeat of Russia would soon be brought about and that all of Japan's objectives could thus be attained.

1907. The United States took the lead in protesting against the annexation of Corea by Japan.

1908-'10. Americans, motivated by the late Willard Straight and E. H. Harriman, took the lead in an effort to bring about the internationalization of the South Manchurian railway—the pride of Japanese development in Manchuria.

1914-'19. Americans took the lead in criticizing the Japanese occupation of the Chinese province of Shantung, and the American government, in 1921, finally brought about the evacuation of that province by the Japanese.

1915. The American government took the lead in opposing Japan's famous "Twenty-One Demands" on China, which embodied Japan's policy of domination of China still being carried out.

1918-'19. The United States government did all in its power to discourage Japanese occupation of Siberia.

1921. The United States government took the initiative in calling the Washington conference, which limited Japan's navy and endeavored to protect China from ultimate subjection to Japan.

1924. The American congress passed the Oriental immigration exclusion act, preventing Japanese immigration into the United States.

1931. The American secretary of state tried to induce the British government to join in protesting against the occupation of Manchuria by Japan, and when Great Britain declined, opposed Japan's course single-handed in a series of diplomatic protests.

There is no doubt that the latest note of the secretary of state expressing the hope that Nanking will not be bombed voices the moral sentiment of the world. No more utterly indefensible return to brutal barbarism has been witnessed than the bombing by Japanese aviators of unfortified cities in a country with which Japan claims not to be at war. Such acts place an indelible stain on Japan's claim to a place among the civilized nations of the world. But America's formal protest will no more deter the Japanese authorities now than it did in 1931. In the mean time it adds fresh fuel to Japan's hatred of the United States. Once again this nation has taken a stand tending to persuade the Japanese people that America is the one nation that stands between Japan and the realization of her ambitions. In applauding the motives of the secretary of state, let no one shut his eyes to the inevitable consequences of such candid fervor.

Splitting Hairs.

Probably, you've no notion of the problems of hairdressers.

Take milliners. "Hairdressers," explained P. Richard, founder and president of the American section of the International Master Ladies Hairdressers association at the opening session of its annual convention, "are now internationally organized to fight milliners. The hairdresser comes first and then the wise milliner makes a hat to fit the hairdress. The milliners think the proper procedure is the other way around. And just as the hairdressers issue an edict to get the back hair up, the milliners not only spoil everything with their evening hats which ruin a high coiffure, but they also violated an agreement to push the halo hat into the fall and winter. The halo hat leaves an open space on top to disclose the hairdressers' art and fall hairdressing fashions were based on the continuance of this vogue, winter winds notwithstanding."

The International Congress of Hairdressers, Mr. Richard further revealed, intends to unify hair fashions throughout the world and force the milliners into line. "The industry will then work hand in glove with the movie industry in setting hair fashions," explained Mr. Richard. "We have been assured of cooperation and do not expect to be double-crossed again."

It begins to loook as though a woman's hair wouldn't be safe on the streets any more.

A thankful heart is not only the greatest virtue, but the parent of all the other virtues.—Cicero.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Tuesday, Oct. 18, 1927.

The general committee named to plan a countywide Armistice day celebration on Nov. 11 organized by electing Oscar Gast chairman and George T. Geran grand marshal.

A. F. Van Deinse, general manager of the C., D. & M. Electric Co., announced plans for construction of a new interurban station and terminal building on West Center street. Plans were being completed by J. Lewis Ellis, Marion architect.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. U. A. Nystrom of Sargent street and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Albert of Wildwood court.

Frank E. Barton, 48, former proprietor of an East Center street barber shop, died at his home on South Prospect street.

Miss Virginia Warner of Newark and Douglas Torrence of Marion were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Frank Magill, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Newark.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Thursday, Oct. 18, 1917.

The treasury department at Washington announced that one-half of the three billion dollar second Liberty loan had been subscribed. Marion county was still considerably short of its quota, only $150,000 of the $850,000 total having been subscribed. Leaders of the campaign here intensified their efforts. Among the most recent subscriptions was one for $1,000 voted by the Eagles lodge.

A mighty Anglo-French air offensive was launched all along the western front against the Germans and in the opening day's attacks 11 German planes were shot down. An attempt of the German land forces to break through the French lines near Bezonvaux on the Verdun front was repulsed.

An American destroyer on patrol duty in the war zone was torpedoed by an enemy submarine, leaving one U. S. sailor dead and five wounded. The destroyer, although badly damaged, made its way to port and escaped capture.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Thatcher of North Greenwood street.

John M. Brigel handed in his resignation as deputy probate judge to Judge W. S. Spencer after serving 21 years under four judges, F. J. Schultz, Martin J. Burke, G. H. Foster and Mr Spencer.

Mr. and Mrs. William O'Brien of East George street returned from New York City, where they visited their son Francis who had arrived here after his third trip to France in the U. S. transport service. They also visited D Company of Marion, which was at Camp Mills awaiting orders for service overseas.

On the Record

It Is Amazing How Studiously Leaders of Administration Avoid Day's Main Topic.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—It is amazing to read the papers, the comments, and the speeches of administration leaders, and to observe how studiously the main question before all of us is being avoided. That question is what are we going to do about the new depression that is not merely menacing, but is here. The grandiose program proposed for the next session of congress, as outlined in the President's speech, concerns itself with nearly everything except this all-important question. Optimism officially reigns, but, unfortunately, without convincing basis. Unless the present direction takes a radical turn, we shall soon be confronted with facts apparent to everybody.

Dorothy Thompson

The stock market break is still only partially reflected in actual production. But the production of today is on the basis of orders accumulated in the boom sentiment of the spring and summer. Industries are filling orders which were placed months ago. They are not getting new ones. In steel the slump is enormous. The same slump is conspicuous in other industries. Building is falling off; plans to build are shelved; there are almost no orders for railroad equipment; textiles are solw. A large department store in New York has issued orders to department heads not to place, for the time being, any orders for replacing inventories. In other words, the present prosperity is merely the tail end of a boom which everything indicates has already spent itself.

The reasons, of course, are manifold, and not all of them are subject ot isolated control of any one country. There are, throughout the world, indications of similar regression. It seems that the insulin injection, given to production by the armament boom, is wearing off as the expenditures in capital goods for rearmament give way to expenditures for arms themselves. The international political uncertainty destroys confidence. It is therefore all the more important, since there is so much outside of our control, that we act with the greatest possible wisdom.

Brings New Problems

Unfortunately, it would seem that a great many of our official actions are taken merely to overcome the bad effects of previous ill-considered actions, and each new move brings new problems. Thus, in the spring, when there was apprehension of inflation, and a desire on the part of government to check the boom which the government itself had started, the federal reserve board embarked on a deflationist policy which has proved to be much more effective than they intended. They increased three times the federal reserve requirements, and a billion and a quarter of government bonds were squeezed into the public, paralyzing the bond market for industry. For four months it has been extremely difficult for industries to get new money by issuing bonds.

There has been, at the same time, a diminution of government spending, in an effort to approach balancing the budget. This is a wholly laudable goal; and a necessary one, but it will add and not subtract from catastrophe, unless industry takes up the slack. But industry will not be able to take up the slack without revision of the entire new deal structure, to release capital. This involves not a slight, but a very radical change in the tax system, and a willingness on the part of labor to withhold, for the moment, and until the present tendency is reversed, measures which will add heavily to costs.

Unfortunately, labor has been consistently educated for the last four years to the belief that high labor costs are a condition of general prosperity; that every rise in wages contributes directly to consuming power and thus to increased turnover, and that there is no limit at which this theory ceases to function.

The fallacy of this idea ought to be obvious to any one who has studied the history of the building trades; it ought to be obvious when unemployment begins to spread. But the entire public

In New York

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—Diary: A gay letter from Gene Fowler in Prague on his way to Doorn to see the ex-Kaiser, a joint postcard from the songsters Martinelli and Mme. Alda, Clayburgh in Vichy and an autographed copy of Wilfred Funk's newest book, "So You Think It's New."

On reading a macabre tale by Ambrose Bierce with the central figure a man from Gallipoli, I wondered if Bierce had ever been there. I was working, then to Conde Nast's party for Lucien Lelong, of Paris, and stayed so late we missed the Stock Club's gambado for Madge Evans, the cinema.

To the Colony with Gene Crawley for a feast of grouse. And Bertram Taylor sent over some scoopings from a Spanish melon plugged with Jamaica rum and lemon, mighty delicious. Then chatting a moment with Aksel and the well groomed Fifi Widener Wichfeld about our dogs. And to my couch.

The end of pushcarts in the metropolis is in hand. An editorialist, commenting thereupon observes: "The minute anything becomes picturesque in this country we (a) abolish it or (b) make a museum piece of it." The pushcart has been on its way out for some years, but Mayor La Guardia seems to have given it the final push. It is argued, and doubtless deservedly that the crowd the streets, leave decaying vegetables and other refuse, and often hawk wares of dubious freshness. Gradually the metropolis has been establishing clean and sanitized open air markets in the areas of the pushcarts. This process will be widened until pushcarts go the way of slum lung blocks.

A study in the value of the cheer is forcibly illustrated by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, the bibliophile. A quiet, mouse-like man until he begins talking about rare editions, and almost immediately a room of chattering folk will go silent to listen. I heard him in action sometimes at Major Bowes' apartment. Always everybody stops gabbing. He can make so musty old book you never heard of fairly glow with interest. I rarely leave him without a firm resolve to join the collectors.

Interlude: On a swaying bus top last evening was one of those genteel old colored fellows carefully dressed, a very black skin contrasting with the spotless white collar and tie and gold rimmed spectacles. He was the sort you see down front at the Baptist church singing a bass horn bass to "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder." He was eating from a bag of peanuts clutched between his knees and he'd give a gentle roll of cheeks and tongue, forcing fragments of nuts forward in his mouth where he could give them a lot of fast, choppy little bites with his front teeth, squirrel like. As he munched his eyes rolled in a sort of ecstatic rapture and his beefsteak lips smacked a pleasant relish. I was about the happiest specimen I've seen since the market crack-up.

Washington Labyrinth

BY PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—When archaeologists experts begin digging around the ruins of Washington 10,000 years from now they probably will find some bewildered tourist trying to find his way out of the commerce department building.

You can wear yourself out walking from the patent office to the bureau of fisheries without ever once having passed the census bureau or the maritime commission. The place is full of dead ends and corridors leading off to the sides and if you enter from Pennsylvania avenue and try to get out again that way, but instead lose yourself out on Constitution avenue two blocks away, don't be perturbed. You are lucky to get out before the week-end.

Second only to the commerce building in complexity is the department of justice building. The best of the modern government mazes is in the department of justice building—at least we should say some of the best, for safety's sake. But it is not an insurable hazard to visit it with the idea of getting out before starving.

We met a girl and her escort who had entered to see the murals, but in trying to get out they had circled around and around in the corridors until they passed the same murals three different times.

We told them to go down a long corridor, then go and go and go without a turn until they came to a blank wall, then to the right and take the elevator to the first floor and ask the policeman there how to make the rest of the way to the street.

Just for fun when we left the building we asked the policeman if a girl in a green dress had asked him how to get out, and he said no; so they may be wandering around yet, and that was days ago.

Some say that G-Man Hoover's agents put them getting each other lost in the building as a test of dimes on who gets out fastest. That probably isn't so, but it gives you an idea.

The state department building looks to the outside as everything from the outside, sort of like a row of houses made from 7,382 matches balanced on the tip of a beer bottle. Inside it is simply a maze in design but has not the qualities of safety against fire that the newer labyrinths boast.

The basement is forever piled high with empty wooden packing cases in which documents are packed and exchanged among the various legations and consulates. The building is of stone but it is elaborately trimmed with wood. If a fire should start among the packing cases, a lot of foreign state documents would make one dramatic "pyre."

However, the building has been there 40 years or more without a single burn out, and the fire department seems to be especially afraid. There isn't a "no smoking allowed" sign in sight.

AID TO RELIEF OF PSORIASIS SYMPTOMS

The itching and irritation of psoriasis is readily relieved by Resinol Ointment, an old formula containing ingredients well known to physicians for their effectiveness.

To get best results, wash off the scales with a pure, mild soap. Resinol Soap is gently medicated and free from excess alkali. Use it with warm water, then rinse and pat dry.

Spread Resinol Ointment evenly over the surface, letting it remain for several hours during the day and over night. Note how quickly its oily base enables the Resinol medication to soothe the angry skin.

Even when the rash begins to fade, do not stop using Resinol too soon. The eruptions of psoriasis have a tendency to recur. Therefore, continue Resinol applications as long as there is any trace of irritation.

DOROTHY THOMPSON VIEWS TOPICS OF DAY

has lived for so long so far from reality that only the sweet music of wish-dreams is audible to its ears. The dominant psychology recalls the years in France when the entire working class believed that it could prosper on reparations from Germany. It went on believing that, encouraged by its political leaders, until a terrific crash came. Similarly, our political leaders have encouraged the workers to believe that prosperity was not to be won by their collaboration in a great national epic—a collaboration in which greater economic justice would determine the distribution of the gains—but has been deluded into the belief that redistribution, of itself, would be sufficient to stabilize and expand our economy.

This failure to educate its own supporters in the most elementary economics, is perhaps, from a long viewpoint, the most serious failure of the whole new deal.

Fulfill Predictions

The capital gains tax and the undistributed profits tax have worked out exactly as the Cassandras of a year ago predicted that they would. They have halted the development of new industries, based on new inventions—always speculative ventures. They have driven capital away from investment in actual production and into tax-exempt bonds. They have restricted expansion of small industries, which always depended for capital either upon offering small low-priced stocks, which the public might take as a speculation, or upon building up capital reserves out of profits. The administration, which went out to fight monopoly, has done everything it could to kill the small entrepreneur. And now, with the capital gains tax and the general atmosphere of political uncertainty, the blight is spreading to the big fellows.

These two taxes must be radically changed if the present tendency is to be halted. And that will mean an increase of taxes somewhere else, and the only way they can be increased is by widening the basis of the income tax. Every country which has vastly increased government expenditures for social purposes has been forced to this. Senator LaFollette is one of the few new dealers who has had the courage to see and say that this is necessary. But here, again, the voters of the country have been educated to believe that they can get everything for nothing.

The administration and the new congress are severely challenged by a seriously reality. If they are going to go down in history otherwise than as a terrible failure, they will have to go back to the original spirit of the first new deal, honestly question many of their own measures, and carefully propose a policy to meet what is, at this moment, the only serious national problem.

THE CHARACTERS

Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair, has fallen in love with her stepfather.

Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather, pays considerable attention to Nina.

Hester, Nina's gay, plump, youthful mother, is crazy about her new husband.

David, a young auto salesman, has begun to adore Nina.

Cordelia is Nina's closest friend.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

The Hunt

THEY had dinner, just the three of them in the spacious, white-walled dining room. Afterwards, Nina played pool for a while with Carl as Hester sat back looking like some old feudal painting, with her tapestry frame...and at 10:30, they went to bed.

Carl said—as he did every hunting-eve: "You can't hunt and stay up late."

So they said their good nights.

Hester turned a cool cheek for Carl's kiss, and they went to their separate rooms.

Nina dreamt that she and Richard were walking, hand in hand, down a long, flower-bordered path. She felt tired when she woke up.

But soon the excitement of the day overcame her fatigue; dressing by lamplight, breakfast, English fashion, with hot dishes at the sideboard—a young fellow named Tommy somebody or other, and Lilith Kent came over to join them; gay, sleepy greetings; the creak of leather . . . the faint jingling of steel. . .

"Well, Tommy, better luck today, young fella! You're riding Headstrong, if I'm not mistaken." Carl was mounting him. "Nine-year-old, clean-bred, doing his fifth season. Capable, courageous, but a trifle er—well, 'Headstrong' is right, ha! ha!"

Laughter. Prophecies. Wagers.

"Good morning, Mrs. Semple. You really shouldn't bother to get up so early. . . ."

Hester came in, in a floaty, buttercup-colored thing that Nina felt was an unfortunate choice. It made her look slightly sallow.

Lilith said, in her straightforward way: "Poor Hester. I've heard of golf widows, but you're a real hunt widow, aren't you?"

And Hester crossed over to the buffet with that peculiar, numb look on her face.

"Yes," she answered, quietly "but it's my own fault, of course."

A Horn Blows, Whips Crack

It was another tradition at Harmony that Carl always "hunked" to and from the meets. If he had a houseful of guests, they were usually driven over in light brakes, or the tally-ho, but this morning his three friends rode over with him.

Outside the air was fresh tangy. The four hunters were waiting at the steps.

"We'll take the cut through Scarborough wood," said Carl, and they were off.

A stiff post and rail. It was tough going.

As they neared the end of the wood path, the gray through the trees gradually began to change to violet, to salmon, to pink . . . and just as they came out upon a glorious stretch of open country, to gold!

The fullest moment of beauty . . . the sunrise.

Far away they heard a hound.

At the Manor, there was a crowd of cars, carriages and a small army of grooms. Only a few had mounted, the rest were standing about in their top-coats chatting, till the arrival of the master.

"He's arrived!"

"All up!"

A horn blew. Whips cracked, and they were off.

Down the main road they went at first, the brittle rhythm of horses' hoofs mingling with the creak of saddlery, and the sharp cries of the huntsman to his hounds.

"Lope on there . . ."

"Aye—e, Colonel!"

"Coop on, Echo!"

Nina took a great deep breath from sheer exhilaration . . . held it, and Carl, riding beside her, saw it and smiled. He understood just how she felt.

Presently, drawing from an unimportant covert, a hound opened in a loud, resounding voice.

"Tally!" cried Carl. "Never opens unless she's sure she's right. We're for it!"

And they were. Through the woods; across a field, with the weird grey mist in their nostrils, curling up from a nearby marsh; over a wall, a ploughed field; a muddy brook; a stiff post and rail. It was tough going.

"Dam this Worthington creature!" swore Lilith, cantering easily at Nina's side. "She's been in my pocket all morning!"

"Too bad, Where's Tommy?" Everybody kept an eye on young Tommy, apparently, he was such a very bad rider . . . and such a brave.

"He got a refusal down the road."

Poor Tommy. They both grinned, and separated a bit.

Tommy Falls Off.

Two fox were run to ground before there was a pause for sandwiches. A few of the ladies dropped out for bridge—but not many—they were a hardy lot. At two o'clock, hounds found again at the far end of the Miles Covert. Away they streamed, and the field settled down to what promised to be a nice long gallop.

After about 40 minutes, Nina saw Tommy's bay, up in front, peek on to his nose at a rail fence. He scraped and bumped along for some distance, first on his knees, then on his chin. She swerved sharply, to avoid a collision, and drew rein.

"Okay, Tommy?"

His nice, freckled face was quite unrecognizable from mud, but he appeared to be sound.

"This mug is crazy," he muttered. "Just to prove I was wrong, he took that last bit of timber at the roots!"

"Chance-y sort of jumper, I should say . . ." Nina remarked, diplomatically.

"Oh, well, there's always the hound van!" He laughed, and was up again.

She thought: "Good boy, Tommy," and pressed the mare, Gray Dawn, lightly with her knee.

In a way it was a wonderful day, and yet she found herself thinking of Richard so constantly that it was dreadful . . . wanting him by her side to share the moments of beauty with which these hours hours were so replete.

But she tried, steadfastly, not to think of him, and when she couldn't help herself, she urged her horse forward, so recklessly that once or twice she almost overrode the hounds.

"Watch yourself, Nina," warned Carl, sharply. "The M. F. H.'s got his eye on you . . . Anything wrong?"

It was not like Nina to commit this grave offense.

Everything was wrong, but she couldn't tell him.

Then . . . at 3:30, it happened, as suddenly as a clock strikes out the hour in the night. They were crossing the main road at top speed at a point just south of Scarborough wood, when Nina's Gray Dawn collided with a thrusting woman, followed, tripped on the frosty macadam, and went down.

David proposes desperately to Nina, tomorrow.

Baked Fish Fillets

With soaring costs of meat new fish recipes are in demand Baked fish is more desirable for juniors than the fried form and is easy to prepare

Dip fish fillets in salted milk (or cream), using one tablespoon of salt for each cup of milk Dip in fine, dry bread crumbs, cornflake crumbs or cornmeal Arrange on greased baking sheet and sprinkle liberally with melted, pure shortening Bake in a very hot oven for about ten minutes Garnish with sliced lemon and parsley

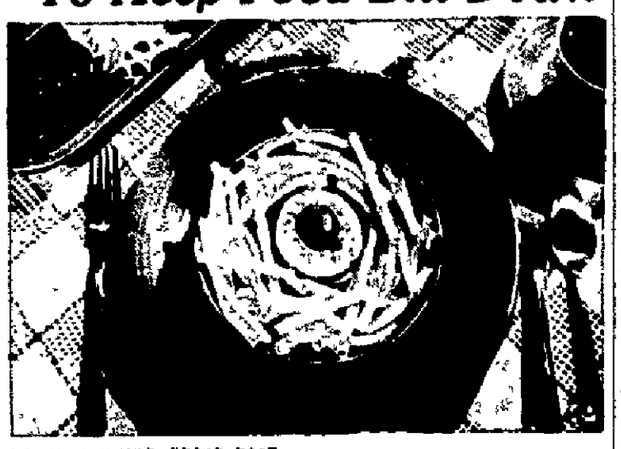
Mrs. George Tells How To Keep Food Bill Down



NEST EGG FOR PRICE RISE

Here's a dish that combines three lower-cost foods. Cooked macaroni is combined with cheese sauce and made into nests Uncooked eggs are put into the nests and the dish is baked for half an hour.

By MRS ALEXANDER GEORGE
Associated Press Writer.

Today's housewife is tempted to throw up her hands in despair when she looks at the prices of food And there is small comfort in the winter predictions of food experts

But there are bright spots

Though meats are 17 per cent higher than they were last year, fruits and vegetables have taken an 18 per cent tumble Eggs are down 4.2 per cent, dairy products and sugar are fractionally lower

Potatoes and Cabbage

And potatoes and cabbage, those standbys of the moderate-income family, are a lot cheaper than they were last year Government statistics representing prices in 51 cities, put potatoes 42 per cent under last year's level and cabbage down 56 per cent

Butter is 8 per cent below the 1936 figure, but lard is 8 per cent higher

Oranges are 24 per cent higher, apples 6 per cent lower.

Cereal and bakery products have advanced substantially So have beverages, fats and oil

But in spite of this, if the housewife uses her head she can make the family budget more than break even

Here are some suggestions

Try adding left-over or freshly-cooked vegetables to a thick creamy sauce in which eggs or cheese are used

Escalloped Dishes.

Make escalloped mixtures of cabbage, cauliflower, peas, beans, potatoes, carrots or turnips—mixed into sauces made of meat or fowl juices and just a little of the meat

When possible cook vegetables with their skins on

Save bacon fat. It can be used in scores of ways in browning and flavoring foods

When you prepare celery for the table save the leaves and coarse parts as seasoning for soups and other cooked mixtures

Dried fruits are a good source of minerals and vitamins, use them more in salads, sauces, pies and cakes

Serve flour pastes—macaroni, spaghetti, vermicelli and noodles—more often Serve them with small portions of meat, fish or fowl, mix them with a savory sauce; bake them in a ring and serve them with tomatoes cheese, mushrooms or a brown sauce, or put them in soups and stews

And, incidentally, don't forget to save the stock from cooked macaroni and noodles It is good in sauces or soups

Rise and Decline.

Here's a tabulation of average food prices in 51 cities compiled by the federal bureau of labor statistics The numbers are indexes based on 100, which represents the average of the years 1923, 1924 and 1925.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Tells Madge Mary Is to Leave Immediately.

WITH MY eyes upon Dicky's retreating back, I waited tensely for Philip Veritzen's first words I had suspected that his telegram to us, as relayed by Nell Gibbs was for me alone that he had nothing of importance to say to Dicky. But his transparent ruse for sending Dicky back to the hotel to see Mary convinced me that he had something to say to me, secretly, which he considered of vital importance

He wasted no time in enlightening me.

"I am desolated to be so obvious," he said "Your husband cannot help but conjecture that I was getting him out of the way, so that I could speak to you alone."

I smiled in what I hope was a tantalizingly superior fashion, for the temptation to deflate him even if ever so slightly was overwhelming

Unnecessary Ruse

"It was a needless ruse," I said "Dicky said to me just before he got out of the car that he would bring you out, and then make some convenient excuse to disappear while we had our chat. You simply anticipated the excuse which I fancy he himself would have used in another second or two"

But Philip Veritzen refused to be deflated or confused

"At least I saved him some mental effort," he said, smilingly unperturbed I mentally murmured "Touche'" and settled myself to hear what he had to say Purposely I did not ask him to enter the car It would do him good to remain standing. I told myself vindictively, but knew, even as I registered the thought, that in all probability he would have refused the invitation, preferring to stand impressively, hat in hand beside the car as he talked

"There are two things I wish to ask you," he began, "both about Mary"

Can't Be Courteous

He paused, patently for a comment from me, but I obstinately remained silent. My mood was distinctly unfriendly to the great producer, and while I knew it was not politic because of Mary and of myself, with my play in the offing, I could not stretch my courtesy too far for fear it might snap

"One is a direct query," he said before my silence became pointed "I am anxious for Mary to leave here Could she spend a few days at your farm before rehearsals"

"How soon do you wish her to leave here?" I asked.

"Today" if it could be managed," he answered "In fact, I expected you would be driving a larger car and perhaps could take her with you"

Madge Has Suggestion

"If we had known sooner," I murmured hypocritically, "we could have changed our traveling plans. Ordinarily, we could risk three in a seat for the journey down, although it would be quite fatiguing But with my foot, I'm afraid—"

I left the rest of the sentence suspended in the air, and Mr Veritzen gave a shocked exclamation

"Oh my dear child!" he said "Not for worlds would I think of incommoding you like that. I can bring Mary down myself, if I know when you can receive her."

"The farm will always be home for her. I trust" I said "You may bring her at any time you please. But, knowing Mary, may I offer a suggestion?"

"Of course," he said, his eyes attentively on my face.

"Then, don't give Noel and Mary a chance to consider themselves martyrs," I said. "There is a plausable reason for your keeping Noel away from Mary during rehearsals, because I understand that is your invariable regime for the young women whom you groom for stellar roles.

"But you surely do not want them to get the idea that you have some ulterior purpose in mind, and they are just young enough and foolish enough to imagine something like that if you draw the reins too tightly."
